BITS & PIECES

When hiring new staff at the public library, the head librarian always asks applicants what sort of supervision they'd be most comfortable with.

One guy answered, "I've always thought Superman's X-ray vision would be cool."

A customer calls Tech Support with an improbable story: She says she dropped her mouse and her PC shut down.

The tech makes the trip to her desk. No question, her computer is off. And when he punches the PC's power switch to restart it, nothing happens.

He asked her where she dropped her mouse. She replied, "Behind the desk."

Sure enough, she had managed to hit the on/off switch on the power strip.

The tech told her, "Good shot."
